Karen West,

The latest information from Introduction to European Business Law by Lund University on Coursera.

Welcome to the Lund University MOOC in European Business Law!

You have joined thousands of students facing a ten week learning experience. Please read through the following announcement carefully, as it will hopefully answer some of your questions about the course and how it works.

Course summary

The course is an introductory course to the most central parts of the European business law. The topics covered include free movement law, competition law, trade law, environmental law and labour law. The course will also enable students to find and use legal material.

Watching the video lectures will give you a good foundation to handle both theoretical and practical issues on the subject. There are study questions which you can do as many times as you like to make sure you have understood the course contents, to practice your legal thinking and to prepare you for the course exams, the graded quizzes. Your own involvement is essential to the learning procedure. By sharing your ideas and thoughts in the Discussion Forums you will enhance your own and others' learning experience.

Getting started

The navigation bar to the left on the course page is how to find your way around. Please have a look at the Grading Policy and the Course Overview pages to get an idea of the course structure and with what lectures to begin. From here you can reach overviews for each of the three study periods, along with links to the course materials.

The course materials can also be reached through the different tabs in the navigation bar. Click the Video Lectures tab to reach the lectures, Study Questions to start practicing and Graded Quizzes to take your exams in the end of each study period. In the Reading Materials you can find further information on case law and more belonging to the lectures.

Amongst the first things we urge you to do is to take the pre-course survey, to be found under Surveys. You taking part in the pre-course and post-course surveys is very valuable to us, since this is the first time this course is running. Submitting will also earn you a few extra credit points.

Heading for a Statement of Accomplishment with Distinction?

There are two different tracks for you to choose your participation level, the normal one earning a Statement of Accomplishment and the more demanding track earning a Statement of Accomplishment with Distinction. To get to know more about your options, please go to Grading Policy for a quick overview and to Assignments for detailed information about what is expected of Distinction students.

Discussion forums

We encourage participation in the Discussion Forums, which is one of the keys to facilitate your learning process – and to make the course more fun! Feel free to discuss topics both related and unrelated to the course, but make sure that you have read the forum posting policy which links from the forum, and to keep your tone friendly at all times.

The course staff will monitor the forums to enhance discussion, organize threads and sub-forums and also to make sure the forums is a place where everyone feels welcome to post and share thoughts. But the major element of the forums will always be the students.

Technical support

If you are having technical problems, please use the Coursera Support pages and the Forum called Technical Problems. The staff team is available to try to help out, but other students may well be able to suggest solutions before we have time to reply.

Contact information

If you want to get in touch with the course staff team, feel free to email mooc@jur.lu.se. We check the mail every weekday.
